East India Company (1800-1858)

(1800-1858)

The East India Company was a joint stock company chartered in 1600 to trade with the East Indies. It was the first major British corporation and played a significant role in the expansion of British colonialism. The company's charter gave it a monopoly on trade between Britain and the East Indies. It was also responsible for the administration of British India from 1757 to 1858. The company's revenue was used to fund the British government and the military. The company's decline began in the 18th century, and it was finally dissolved in 1858.

Eastburn, Robert, 1710-1778.

A faithful narrative of the many dangers and sufferings, as well as wonderful and surprizing deliverances of Robert Eastburn, during his late captivity among the Indians: together with some remarks upon the country of Canada, and the religion and policy of its inhabitants; the whole intermixed with devout reflections. By Robert Eastburn. Published at the earnest request of many persons, for the benefit of the public. With a recommendatory preface, by the Rev. Gilbert Tennent ... Philadelphia: Printed. Boston;

1. Sagas. 2. Eddas, I, Title.
